

OTH

This man, upon a slight and false accusation of favouring arbitrary power, was banished by ostracism; which in English would signify, that they voted he should be removed from their presence and council for ever.

Ostracism. n. f. [Ostracis, Fr. ostracisme, Lat. ostracismus, Gr.] An ostracism is a vote of banishment.

Ostrich. n. f. [ostrich, Fr. ostrich, Lat. ostrichus, Gr.] A large bird, with long neck and legs, and its wings very short, and the neck about four or five spans. The feathers of its wings are in great esteem, and are used as an ornament for hats, beds, canopies: they are stained of several colours, and made into pretty tufts. They are hunted by way of course, for they never fly; but use their wings to assist them in running more swiftly. The ostrich swallows bits of iron or brass, in the same manner as other birds will swallow small stones or gravel, to assist in digesting or comminuting their food. It lays its eggs upon the ground, hides them under the sand, and the sun hatches them.

I'll make thee eat iron like an ostrich, and swallow my sword like a great pin, ere thou and I part.

Gavest thou the goodly wings unto the peacock? or wings and feathers unto the ostrich.

The Scots errant fight, and fight to eat, Their ostrich stomachs make their swords their meat.

Modern ostriches are dwindled to meek larks, in comparison with those of the ancients.

Ostracism. n. f. [ostracis, Fr. ostracisme, Lat. ostracismus, Gr.] An instrument to facilitate hearing.

In a hare, which is very quick of hearing, it is supplied with a bony tube; which, as a natural ostacustick, is so directed backward, as to receive the smallest and most distant sound that comes behind her.
